Undervisning: The Essence of the King of Samadhi Sutra fre.-sön. 26-28 maj på Ratnashri Meditation Center

The King of Samadhi Sutra or The Samadhiraja Sutra

The long title, Noble Mahayana Sutra The King of Samadhis, the Revealed Equality of the Nature of All Phenomena, is one of the earlier Mahayana sutras to appear in India. It is one of the sutras that is most recited and quoted; in particular, its teaching on emptiness is much quoted by such Madhyamaka masters as Candrakirti and Shantideva, as well as in later Buddhist literature. The sole purpose of this sutra is to show a path to realize the ultimate nature of reality, that is, equality of the nature of all phenomena as the long title suggests. In this sutra, the term samadhi is not presented solely in its meaning of immersion, concentration, or meditation. Samadhi here also refers to the complete path of buddhist practices regarding conduct, motivation, the understanding and realization of emptiness, as well as a way to refer to the sutra itself. The sutra enumerates over three hundred of the samadhi's qualities. In a very poetic language, via dialogues between the Buddha and Candraprabha, the Buddha draws from the wealth of his experiences and thus touches on an almost encyclopedic breadth of topics. The teaching given in the sutra is the instruction to be dedicated to the possession and promulgation of the samadhi, and to the necessary conduct of a bodhisattva, which is exemplified by a number of accounts from the Buddha's previous lives. Rinpoche will share his vast knowledge of this sutra and profound insights based on his experiential understanding and realization of this sutra.

Rinpoche kommer att överföra och undervisa essensen av denna djupgående och välsignande sutra på ett lätt tillgängligt sätt.

Khenchen Nyima Gyaltsen Rinpoche was born in 1976. He studied both at the Drikung Kagyu Jangchubling Monastery in Dehradun and at the Dzongsar Shedra Monastic College in Bir, India. In 2002 he was appointed as a Khenpo by His Holiness Drikung Kyabgon Chetsang and since then he has been a teacher at the Kagyu College and responsible for compiling texts and instructing Western translators. From 2005 onwards, buddhist texts have been translated into foreign languages under his guidance for several months each year. In 2008, he started to teach in Dharma centers in the East and West during his annual holidays. In 2013, he was appointed by His Holiness as the second Khenchen of the main seat of Drikung Kagyu in India. Rinpoche's knowledge and realization are vast and he is often invited to hold seminars, debates, and analysis of classics like Gong Chig and Madhyamaka Shastra by monasteries throughout India. Directed by His Holiness, he leads the Vikramashila translation project, giving teachings and instructions to translators regularly at the Milarepa Center in Germany.

At one time a world appears, and later the entire world becomes space. As it was before, so it is afterward. Know that all phenomena are like that.

All that there is in this world later dissolves into the mass of water below. As it is below, so it is above. Know that all phenomena are like that.

Just as in a completely cloudless sky in an instant a mass of clouds appears—from where did they first originate? Know that all phenomena are like that.

If you think of a tathāgata who has passed into nirvāṇa, his image will appear in your mind. As he was before, so he is afterward. Know that all phenomena are like that.

When a person sees a mass of foam that is carried along in a river and examines it, they see that it has no essence. Know that all phenomena are like that.

When large drops of rain fall, there appear separate bubbles of water. They vanish as they appear; the bubbles have no existence. Know that all phenomena are like that.
